

ABSTRACT

A luminaire comprising a housing, plurality of reflectors, lamps and electrically connected lamp sockets. The luminaire has at least two asymmetrical reflectors that are symmetrically opposed to each other and ideally has at least one symmetrical reflector located between the asymmetrical reflectors. The luminaire results in a wider light distribution pattern and increased vertical illumination.